The latest International Conference of Biodeterioration and Protection of Cultural Heritage was organised by Lodz University of Technology on September 8-9, 2016 in Lodz (Poland). It received funding from the Ministry of Science and Higher Education Republic of Poland for supporting the activities popularizing science. Organizing Committee – Prof. Beata Gutarowska and her team within these project have prepared multimedia materials on the problem of biodeterioration and protection of cultural heritage. The effects of the project include newsletter, short film for an adult audience and an interactive multimedia path for school and PhD students.

We hope that the prepared materials will help to increase public awareness in the field of biodeterioration and protection of cultural heritage. In this way we would like to strengthen the cooperation between researchers and practitioners from around the world dealing with biodeterioration and biodegradation of historical objects and protection methods.
